

Day of Mourning BC Schools Project

(Day 1)

Did you know that an average of 1000 people die on the job each year in Canada?

April 28th is The National Day of Mourning for Workers Killed and Injured on the Job.

If you have a part time job, ask about work place dangers and insist on safety training from your supervisor.

Next week on Sunday, April 28th, remember those who have been injured or have died at work.

Please, mourn them, but don't be one of the mourned – stay safe at work.

Day of Mourning BC Schools Project

(Day 2)

April 28th is The National Day of Mourning for Workers Killed and Injured on the Job. A day when we recognize and remember all those who have lost their lives just trying to provide for themselves and their families.

Young and new workers run a greater risk of being hurt on the job than any other group. Every week an average of 7 young workers are permanently injured on the job in BC

Know your workplace right and safety procedures. Remember:
Everyone has the legal right to refuse unsafe work.

Day of Mourning BC Schools Project

(Day 3)

An average 3-4 Canadian workers die each day on the job. Three or four families that said goodbye to their loved ones when they left for work in the morning, families that were never able to welcome them home at the end of the day again.

Young workers like us are statistically the most likely to be hurt on the job. Don't be a statistic: insist on safety training, use safety equipment at work, and always exercise your right to refuse unsafe work.

On Sunday, April 28th, The National Day of Mourning, remember those who have been injured or have died at work. Please, mourn them, but don't be one of the mourned – stay safe at work.

Day of Mourning BC Schools Project

(Day 4)

In 2017, 6,650 young workers were injured on the job in BC. Young worker injuries represent a third of the total work place injuries in BC.

This Sunday, April 28th, is The National Day of Mourning for Workers Killed and Injured on the Job. It is a day when we recognize and remember all those who have lost their lives just trying to provide for themselves and their families.

Many students at this school have part time jobs, and all of us one day will have full time careers.

As young workers we should protect ourselves from workplace dangers by knowing the safety procedures at work and by knowing our rights.

Remember: Everyone has the right to refuse unsafe work.
On Sunday, April 28th, remember those who have been injured or have died at work.

Please, mourn them, but don't be one of the mourned – stay safe at work

Day of Mourning BC Schools Project

(Day 5)

Did you know that young workers are highly vulnerable to workplace injury? Young males face a 48 percent higher risk of injury than the overall working population.

This Sunday, April 28th, is The National Day of Mourning for Workers Killed and Injured on the Job.

It is a day when we recognize and remember all those who have lost their lives just trying to provide for themselves and their families.

Many students at this school have part time jobs, and all of us one day will have full time careers.

As young workers we should protect ourselves from workplace dangers by knowing the safety procedures at work and by knowing our rights.

Remember: Everyone has the right to refuse unsafe work.

On Sunday, April 28, remember those who have been injured or have died at work.

Please, mourn them, but don't be one of the mourned –stay safe at work.